Welcome to our 5th Introductory Course in Genetic Counseling in Oncology 2018

Genetic counseling, nowadays mostly done by clinicians, gains importance each year, as technology and genetic and medical knowledge advance at a rapid pace. The results of genetic testing not only help in planning prevention and early detection of cancer, but increasingly also influence the choice of specific drugs and the type of chemotherapy. Also the scope of genetic counseling is surpassing the traditional field of breast and ovarian cancer, gaining additional relevant importance for clinicians of other fields, such as gastroenerology and urology. This SAKK course organized by a scientific committee of the CPTC group responds to this increasing need by offering a yearly compact course with the essential theoretical and practical knowledge but also providing a platform for discussions with our distinguished faculty and for networking with future colleagues. We welcome participants from all language areas of Switzerland, and therefore all our slides will from now on be in English, as also the majority of our presentations. On behalf of our scientific committee I wish you a very informative, challenging and successful course as a possible basis for your own genetic counseling sessions.
